

Frost fair, bridges and future

Through climate change some things have changed in the world. It is not really cold in winter and the ice is melting at the Poles. Before it changed, there were still cold winters which result in lakes and sometimes rivers freezing. Likewise in London the Thames frooze and so-called frost fairs were developed. This climate change could be a problem in the future.

Sources: wikipedia.de, 21stcentrychallenges.org and museum of london
 Marei Hauschildt